Sector 1: Agriculture and food security

General objective: to contribute to sustainable growth in the agricultural sector and to improve the food and nutrition security situation of vulnerable population groups.

Specific objective:

- ✓ Increase sustainable agricultural production, productivity and improve marketing of agricultural products
- ✓ Enhance participatory and sustainable natural resources management
- ✓ Improve resilience and long-term nutrition among vulnerable population groups

Expected results:

- Quality of integrated public and private veterinary service delivery improved.
- Increased productivity, improved quality and increased exports for the coffee sector.
- Increase of sustainable crop (including staples) productivity and production
- Coverage of improved and sustainable land management increased
- Coverage of improved sustainable forest management increased
- Vulnerable communities have an improved capacity to withstand and reduce the impacts of shocks and disasters.
- Relief and development interventions are better articulated and interlinked
- Reduced levels of stunting

Sector 2: Health

General objective: to improve health outcomes for all through contribution towards the achievement of national Health Sector Development Programme targets.

Specific objectives:

- ✓ Further strengthen health systems for universal coverage and quality of health services
- ✓ Contribute to the improvement of social and environmental conditions affecting health outcomes.

Expected results:

- Access and quality to health services has increased
- Availability and quality of information on key health indicators has improved
- Contribute to the improvement of social and environmental conditions
- Social and environmental determinants of health outcomes have improved

Sector 3: Transport infrastructure and Energy

General objective: to support the implementation of Ethiopia's Road Sector Development Programme (road sector) and Climate Resilient Green Economy strategy (energy sector).

Specific objective:

- ✓ Develop an effective rural road network capable to connect people to basic services and to the markets
- ✓ Improve the management of works through the strengthening of procurement at all levels.
- ✓ Improve the maintenance of the road network
- ✓ Improve road safety
- ✓ Enhance the involvement of women in the road sector
- ✓ Improve access to modern, safe and sustainable energy services
- ✓ Increase power production from renewables such as biogas, micro-to-mini-hydro, geothermal, solar and wind
- ✓ Improve energy efficiency.

Expected results:

- All kebeles are connected to all-weather roads, with a significant diminution of the area that is located further than 5km from an all-weather road
- Decrease in cost overruns due to poor design and management iii. Improve the maintenance of the road network
- Adequate budget for maintenance activities is provided to the implementing agencies (Road Fund, Regional Road Authorities)
- Percentage of gravel and asphalt roads in good condition increase
- Improve road safety and decrease in fatality rate
- Access to modern, safe and sustainable energy is increased
- Increase power production from renewables
- Power production from renewables (e.g. biogas, micro-to-mini-hydro, geothermal, solar and/or wind) is increased
- Improved energy efficiency in terms of generation, transmission, distribution and consumption

Civil Society

Addressing governance challenges within the three focal sectors to help deliver sustainable results. It can do so, for instance, by enhancing the involvement of civil society and women in policy making, oversight and implementation, by strengthening participatory local governance processes and institutions, by adopting a rights-based approach, and by further addressing gender issues.

Building on the experiences of the 10th EDF Civil Society Fund, which focuses on engagement in the development process, accountability and governance issues, a specific facility will be set up to consolidate and expand support to civil society organisations. The objective will be two-fold: i.e. strengthening the role of civil society in the national development and democratisation process, as well as building its capacity to engage in governance and development activities.

Other support measures

In addition to the focal sectors, a Technical Cooperation Facility that aims to support or accompany the programming, preparation and/or implementation of actions, is foreseen through a specific allocation. This facility also foresees continued support to the quality and visibility of EU-Ethiopia Cooperation as well as including a reserve for insurance against possible claims arising out of development cooperation. Moreover, it can be used to further advance the EU+ Joint Programming in the country and to enhance aid effectiveness.
